

Ana

The policy of silencing

Tatiana Balbi Fraga

Abstract

'Ana: The Policy of Silencing' is a book that discusses some important issues of our century, such as: COVID; technological advancements; the loss of privacy and individuality; immediacy; competition; the industry of madness; posthumanism; transhumanism, etc.

The book uses an adaptation of the textual language used by Laura Nowlin's in her book 'If He Was With Me'. Nowlin narrates the past using present and future time. It's interesting.

However, the idea of the book is to design a web of memories and reflection, creating a story that walks through a brain's synaptic networks...

It is not possible to know if it will be good until it is over.

And there is no intention to finish it.

In short ... it's just something for distraction ... but also a provocation in the hope that things will change at some point.

Chapter 1

about being alone

I have always loved silence and tranquility. So being alone has never been a problem for me. Even isolated, I never felt really alone.

I once saw a report on TV5. The interviewee was a lady who was about 50 years old, with very short dark hair. This lady said she liked to go to a isolated place and be alone from time to time and that her family was unable to understand it. Trying to explain the feeling she sought, she said:

”Only when I’m alone I can find God.”

I could completely understand this lady. I thought: That’s right. But, it was in recent years that I understood what it means to be alone...

Being alone means living the horror and having no one to ask for help.

Chapter 2

Sweetie

It happened more than once. But the first time was something different. I was driving with a kitten on my lap. And submly I started to see the world with a different color. It is a subtle joy, without any foundation. A supreme well -being, a contently for nothing and anything.

The kitten was all black, very small. It was still a baby. In the corridors of universality. Someone passed and it followed the person. Then it came back to the same point, just to follow the next passer again.

There were many turns, until someone felt a strong interest in the kitten, and stopped to observe it with a certain curiosity.

I asked: Do you want to adopt it ? I promise that I give it to you castrated and dewormed.

Then I saw on her face a wide smile of comtemplation.

The kitten is so sweet that I named it Sweetie. I left Sweetie in my room at work until the end of the day. I tried to use a cardboard box to transport it to my house. But it ran away and while I was driving, Sweetie came to lodge in my lap.

I remember how happy I was, driving toward my house with that kitten.

In the following days, I cast it, and we spent a long time together until its complete recovery. Sweetie was very sapeca. She was terribly happy at home.

The days passed and I had to take Sweetie to its new owner. It was a little sad. Leaving Sweetie was very painful. It was like leaving a part of me. I donated the transportation box along with the kitten, and half a feed bag so that Sweetie could adapt well to its new home.

I said to my husband, Adan: I hope God takes good care of Sweetie. He replied: He is already taking care of.

Later, Sweetie recovered its old behavior. Someone passed and Sweetie followed the person, and returned again to the grocery store, just to follow the next person. Sweetie had to deal with another somewhat territorialist kitten. Its new mate did not want to share the love of its owners.

But Sweetie had its destination adjusted. And was adopted again. In Its new home, Sweetie found the company of a child. And happiness found both. Today Sweetie is a very loved and happy kitten. It's already adult, but it's still sapeca. When its owner arrives home from college, Sweetie lies next to her. And keep looking at its owner typing on the computer. At night, Sweetie lodges on the feet of the bed. Look at its owner sleeping, gives a long supply and closes its eyes, waiting for the next day to arrive.

Chapter 3

The Covid Gang

In spring, the heat came back in all its fullness. I decided I should put my concerns aside and go for a walk on the beach. After all, I left my apartment abandoned for a long time. I thought I deserved to take care of myself and that after a day or two on the beach I would be much more willing.

Friday was a perfect day. The trip to the beach was very fast and calm. Many people in the sand and many boats in the sea. All very different from what I remembered. But the day was beautiful. I walked all day in the beach sand and took a sea bath surrounded by fishes. I ate fish with capers sauce that was delicious, in an expensive restaurant . I bought a pot of acai that served to dinner. I read a little more of Laura Nowlin's book "If he was with me" while lying on the net. Everything was great. At night I slept like a stone.

On Saturday things change completely. Mr. Marcos da Fonte was an acquaintance. I found him casually early in the morning, while arguing with the doorman about the real need to have some kind of registration. I talked to Mr. da Fonte about condominium issues and told him about my kidnapping.

In the afternoon I'm reading on the net, and then suddenly I start to feel a terrible discomfort. I feel a very strong pain in the nostrils and a severe headache. Through the crack of the door, I see the cleaning lady passing cloth on the floor.

The malaise only increases and I decide to return home. I was thinking of leaving only after noon, but I advance my plans. Arriving at the post, I take a bottle of Gatorade at Freeser and ask for a cheese bread. I'm really feeling nauseous, as if I had drunk alcohol all night. It's been a long time since I've been drinking anything alcoholic, but the feeling is familiar to me. The boy takes my cheese bread through the door to warm it inside the kitchen. I think it's weird. I ask him why he didn't use the oven or the microwave in the canteen itself. He makes some not very reasonable excuse. In the middle of the trip, I enter a local avenue. I remember there was a supermarket I visited two weeks ago. As soon as I enter the avenue, a SAMU's van comes out of somewhere and goes in front of me. I repeat to myself: just ignore it. And I follow my way. In the supermarket, as usual, there was an employee changing some cans, near the place where the mineral water bottles are. I see some crates of the bottle that I usually buy on the floor, next to this boy. On the shelf there were a few bottles like these. The bottles were covered with dust, as if they were there without care for a long time. Then I chose a different brand. I took some bottles that were not dusty. Almost arriving home, I stop in a good restaurant. I feed well and malaise passes the same time. While how, I see the attendant leave the counter a little stunned to talk to someone who seems to be the manager. I hear part of the conversation. The attendant says: she doesn't ... The alleged manager makes gestures and tells the attendant that he should move the food.

I get home and I feel relieved. Nothing better than being at home. I take a shower and take the book I was reading. After all, I really wanted to finish reading the book. I lie on the porch couch and start reading.

After a few hours of reading, some car at a reduced speed is on the road with the sound really very high. I stop reading a little and listen to the lyrics of the song that plays: "Take it, take it, take it in the ass." I have the impression that the car has stopped, because I hear the sound at the same height, without the sensation of which it is moving away. The chorus repeats himself a few times: "Take it, take it, take it in the ass." I try to ignore and go back to reading and then I realize that the volume of the sound slowly reduces until disappear.

The night is not very pleasant. I wake up feeling pain and discomfort again. It's still dawn. I hear some sound and decide to walk inside the condominium to find out where it comes from. I walk the condominium road following the music and find that the very high sound is installed in a narrow little deforested dirt road next to the condominium fence. I come home, I repeat to myself that my house is the safest place in the world and then I sleep again until morning.

On Sunday, I take the day to write and hear a cyrene sound on the road several times throughout the day. It bothers me a little, but I try to ignore it.

Chapter 4

Adam

We are walking in the beach sand in Mikonos. We see a great rock a little distant from the coast, as if it were a small rocky island being snatched by the sea. Adam propose that we swim to the island, and of course ... I would never refuse.

Sea water is warm and transparent. We are wearing diving glasses and we swim to the island, submerged and hand in hand ...

The island is a little larger than I expected. We explore the island and, like two children, we try to hide when we see a boat coming close to us.

On the way back, I dive into the sea with my hands forward, as if I were a dolphin. But I do this wearing the diving glasses that break when shocking with the water. I swim to the coast with my forehead bleeding, but with a big smile on my face ...

Weeks later, we are already back in France ... I walk next to Adam ...

Adam tells me about a recent dream. He tells me that we are walking hand in hand on the sea, as if we were walking on a thin, transparent layer of ice. And that, under our feet, we can see thousands of fish. I can see Adam's dream like a memory.

I have no doubt about the meaning of the dream. It is just a reflection of the feeling we have for each other.

Chapter 5

Day before my kidnapping

After driving many hours, I arrive at my beach apartment accompanied by my mother and my cousin, Basco. I am really exhausted and I feel that I will have difficulty giving the medication to my kittens. I let out the kittens in the bedroom and, with a lot of effort, I put the sandbox, feed and water for them and I can medicate Braquinha and Lucy. Then I fall on the bed and finally sleep like a stone.

I wake up after several hours, feeling very hot. I'm still really tired. The deep sleep I had was not enough to recover my disposition. The room is muffled, in a way that cannot be supported. I open the bedroom door and I free my kittens in the apartment.

I walk to the living room and see my mother lying on the bicama couch. She has a somewhat strange expression, as if she was feeling terribly terrible with something. Basco is not in the apartment. The kitchen sink drain is covered with a water-filled cuzcuzeira, and the bathroom sink drain is clogged with colored toothpaste. The sink is full of water. Given what I've been through in recent days, I didn't find it strange. But I said to my mother: Mom, the kittens are drinking water from the bathroom sink ... this will make them sick.

My mother goes to the bathroom, empties and cleans the sink.

Hours later, several people arrive at the apartment door. My mother opens the door and a slightly strong gentleman with a somewhat rounded face crosses the door. My mother leaves the door open as Mr. Rounded Face begins to question me, without worried about a possible glow of my kittens. A condominium employee awaits outside, accompanied by unknown persons. I am worried about the door open and my kittens, but the lord with rounded face begins to question me abruptly.

I tell this gentleman about why I want my mother to leave. I answer the questions narrating a long story. Although I am confused with what was happening, I came to some kind of conclusion.

When he finishes his interrogation, Mr. Rounded Face turns to my mother and says: we can't take her like this, she's fine.

The people who were outside move away. Mr. Rounded Face begins a somewhat strange speech. He proposes that I walk on the beach with my mother so someone he has entitled "she" couldn't hear us. My mother has an expression that becomes more restless as the Lord's speech continues. Then he closes the door of the apartment and says: Since your mother is here, I will say: Don't exceed yourself because we will make you suspect everyone.

I don't know what to think about all this. Nothing seems to have some kind of coherence, but I try to put the facts together.

My mother is washing dishes and I stop by her side and ask: is you the person responsible for all this ?

My mother bends her body down forming on her back a hunchback. She tilts her head to the side and down. Then she shakes her head positively, speaking softly: Yes, it's me.

I tell my mother: I want you to leave.

And my mother resists with a certain insistence.

After a while, my mother gives me the phone, saying that I should talk to my sister.

I say on the phone: Thaila, I want mom to leave. And Thaila replies: Ana, you have a niece. Confused, I return the phone to my mother and say: You leave.

After a few minutes my mother comes to talk to me. She says: I'm leaving tomorrow, but only if you talk to a doctor. He will call at 19:00h.

We await the call, the doctor does not call at 19:00h and he does not call later. I tell my mother: Well, no doctor called. And my mother replies: he may have suffered an accident. Again confused, I say: I already waited enough, I'm tired, I'm going to sleep. Tomorrow you leave.

Chapter 6

Genius and madness

Many people believe that genius is a gift that arises when geniuses are born. But this is not totally true since every being is the result not only of genetics, but also of a set of experiences.

I believe that:

Genius happens after total abdication of itself through self-delivery to a passion for which the genius being has aptitude

In history, many geniuses are portrayed as crazy at some point in their lives, as exemple:

- During his doctorate, and before redefining Game Theory, John Nash talked to invisible people;
- In the last years of his career, Albert Einstein used to go to work using pajamas.

I will not comment here that, in 1994, John Nash was awarded the Nobel Memorial Prize in the Economic Sciences for his contribution to game theory.

About Einstein, I feel as if I knew him deeply and I can guarantee that going to work wearing pajamas was for Einstein a form of mockery to society's standards.

For a long time, Einstein's brilliance was deliberately hidden due to the envy of co-workers. After many years he was finally recognized and became a key element for the university's image he worked for. Einstein had numerous scientific publications and discoveries that changed a generation. Therefore, when Einstein understood that his place in the world was already sealed, he became a better version of himself, abandoning behaviors that were now dispensable for him.

The story of these crazy geniuses brings out an important question: what is madness ?

And, based on my recent experiences, I can present a possible answer:

Madness is a behavior that is not accepted by an elite of the social group in which the madman is inserted.

From the madman begins to emerge new ideas and questions related to standards, ethical questions, principles and truths. Concepts which such an elite does not want to dig up.

Madness is therefore a way to silence the provocations of a genius

After all, attesting that a person is mad, it is a very effective way to discredit them.

One thing is certain about the geniuses:

A genius sees things that other people can't see, in places where other people don't expect

So it is natural for genius people not to be understood. And the fact that geniuses are always linked to change, it can really scare.

Therefore, people's cruelty is not associated with fear or lack of understanding.

People's cruelty is linked to the cruel, selfish and competitive nature, inherent in the human being.

And madness is clearly a concept created by cruel people.

Chapter 7

COVID Gang - Who are they ?

When you think of COVID, you cannot see this in a purely personal aspect ... But in fact, COVID has become personal for thousands, millions or even billions of people. COVID didn't just happen to me. But it happened to me lately in a way as inhuman and frightening as torture and terrorism can be.

Thinking about the personal aspect, the COVID Gang can be distributed in two classes: people who are financing the aggressions; and people who are performing the aggressions.

Who are the people who are financing this ?

I paid an appointment to two lawyers. I told them about the last torments I have had to endure.

We are in our third meeting and the lawyers have a budget in their hands. The lawyer tells me: I believe that who is doing this is a group of people.

The lawyer is right, but who are these people ?

In my opinion, if it is really a group, this group could be formed by: owners of a psychiatric clinic, employees of a technology company, people from my work; other public officials; a corrupt lawyer I hired in the past; people from my beach condominium; the construction company that sold me the beach apartment; person who sold me the land in which I built my house. Most of these people, assaulted me strongly in very different ways, long before COVID begins. These are the people who might want to silence me or make me look crazy and disappear, buried alive in a clinic.

And who are the people who are directly terrifying me ?

Criminals and ordinary people who are unemployed or earn a low salary such as cashier attendants, truckers, restaurant employees, gas stations attendants.

It is possible to understand why the "hate financiers" are assaulting me.

But why do ordinary people are assaulting me ?

There are many possible reasons, but I have some guesses that seem to present some kind of logic:

- some people have been hired in some way for this;
- someone created some kind of hatred chain against me;
- criminals are assaulting other people and making it seems that I am responsible for this;
- criminals are assaulting or threatening other people who refuse to assault me;
- Some people just feel good about doing this.

Possibly all these alternatives are correct. The only thing I can think is that somehow people were convinced to cooperate in this regard.

This is the logical conclusion that I arrived after almost two years being tortured and terrified. But ... is there any other explanation behind it ?

Chapter 8

A good opportunity

It's been over a year since I started my doctorate. Nancy is an excellent workmate. It's been a few years since we started working in the same room. We divide our dawn in front of our computers ... reading ... typing ... searching. We have different goals for a common end: research. And it seems clear, we love what we do.

We talk little, but our short conversations are always pleasant. We talk about our lives, the longing for a daughter, the need to pay bills from a distant country ... We live in a small town, but we never talk bad about other people.

Nancy always gives me some important tips that I will lead to the rest of my life, such as about CodeBlocks, cplusplus.com, or about some technical concept or even how to overcome some buracratic challenges of the university.

We are on a cold night squeezing our arms under our already aged wool coats. Nancy tells me about doctoral scholarships abroad that are offered by Capes and CNPq ...

I always wanted to know Europe. Especially Greece. I saw a few Greek movies, and I was always dazzled by the scenes that happened in the Greek rocks. Always an amazing landscape. And ... well ... the gods are Greek.

For this reason, I spent the next few days trying to understand a vast paperwork of edicts.

Then, I visit my advisor's room with a simple task: teacher, there is a doctoral internship bag abroad, I need you to present me a reference from someone you have worked with.

And he answered me: there is a teacher in the USA, another in Portugal, and finally, Professor Bernardo, who works at a university in France.

USA... no, no, and no ... Portugal ... all there they speak Portuguese ...

The next days were nothing easy ...

I'm crying in front of the computer because I don't understand the meaning of on, y: On y vas ? On a parlé.

I have little time. I need to take a grade 7.0 in the French Alliance test. Toffel-equivalent examination for the french language.

I paid a few classes to a French teacher. She gave me some important tips on TV5 and a French radio. But after three meetings, she told me very sincerely: you won't make it.

At this point I introduce something very important about my personality: In my life, I never measure efforts.

I create a learning technique totally outside any standard of reality.

I chose some videos from the channel apprende TV, from the TV5 website, so I decide to listen to the videos, then read and translate the transcription, then listen again, then listen and write. I make it repeatedly, until I could understand speech and write the text 100% in french without any grammatical error. Then I start doing the same with french radio audios nominated by the teacher.

After three months repeating this repertoire, I perform the French Alliance test. And my grade is: 6.5.

I'm a little unhappy, because I just have one more chance.

I make another appointment with the French teacher. After all, the tips she gave me helped me a lot.

After a few minutes of conversation in french, the teacher says: I'm surprised. How did you get this ?

I answer: following your tips, and making an absurd effort.

After another month, I perform the French Alliance test again. And my grade is: 7.5.

And at this point I introduce other very important thing about me: I could never ever correctly pronounce the word apprendre. Can anyone do this ?

Chapter 9

COVID

I'm working in my bedroom. Adam calls me with a certain enthusiasm. I go to the TV room. Adam shows me a video of something that happens in China. People are leaving some city. The temperature of each person who goes through some kind of portal is measured with some instrument that seems to have the shape of a bar code reader.

I try to understand the English report with a certain effort. I understand part of the speech. The scene I see seems to repeat some movie about the Holocaust.

Adam tells me: How is it possible that they are letting people get out of town ?

I go back to my room and I Google the word sars cov virus.

I read some reports about Asian influenza and I try to understand as deeply as possible the type of viruses being addressed in the report.

I go back to the TV room, and I keep looking at the report next to Adam, now completely stagnant.

Chapter 10

Mr. Rocher

I wake up at dawn feeling a severe headache. I swallow a pain medicine along with some sips of water. I turn on my computer and log into the game to do some missions hoping the pain pass. I'm really sleepy. I want to go back to sleep, but the pain bothers me.

Mr. Rocher soon finds me online and asks: Are you awake ? I answer: I have a headache, I can't sleep.

We talk about something of the game. There will soon be a battle between servers. Mr. Rocher is one of the first covenant ministers. He is responsible for diplomatic matters and is always solving disputes and seeking agreements. However, as one of the first ministers, he is also always concerned with battles.

I just adore him. While we talk I feel calm, safe and happy.

It's been about two years since we met. Our wedding happened a few months after someone decided to turn the game into a relationship site. Several wedding packages were launched with real prices varying according to the size of the party. We got the cheaper package, but we had a typical Russian wedding, with a lot of greetings and long verses with good fortune and a lasting relationship desires. It was a very funny, cheerful and even a little exciting moment. It was my first marriage.

After long minutes of a very pleasant conversation, we say goodbye long and then, without any trace of headache and with a wide smile on my face, I can go back to sleep.

Chapter 11

Kidnapping day

I wake up in the morning. Basco is lying on the net. But soon he goes out to walk on the beach and I lie down where he was.

I sleep a little and wake up with my kitten Sol licking my hand. Very sleepy I see that the glass window that separates the room from the porch is slightly open. Still sleepy, I return Sol into the apartment and I close the glass window. I go back to sleep and again I wake up with another kitten licking my hand. Now it's Charlotte.

Now I realize a danger that represents finding my kittens on the porch and I wake up and raise scared. I tell my mother: Why are you releasing the kittens ?

I hear Mel meowing and see it on the bathroom box, as if it is very scared. My mother says: It's not me. They are leaving from the bathroom window. I reflect a little. The glass door was a little open. Someone certainly opened it. It is not possible for the kittens to go from the bathroom window to the porch. It is absolutely unlikely. I see that my mother is lying and get even more stunned. I look for the kittens and see that Sol and Tigresa are not in the apartment. And finally I start to get really stressed. I argue with my mother. I say: I am like a Lotus flower. I am always having to reborn from the mud. Now I will have to be reborn from the mud again because of you. Go away.

The just moment I say this, it starts to rain abruptly and strongly. My mother asks: is you the one who is causing this rain ? Somewhat stunned by the question, I answer: of course not. My mother says: I will buy fruits for you with Basco and then we go.

I started to get really nervous. While my mother left the apartment, I continued the search. And I started thinking about what I should do. I am hungry, I am still tired, and now I am really stressed. My mother arrive with Basco back to the apartment and I say: I don't want anything from you. Go away now and take these fruits with you.

I went to help carry the bags to the car and when I get back to the apartment, my mother is riding a chlorine cloth on the floor. The apartment is hot and muffled. The smell of chlorine is very strong. It's suffocating. It brings me to my limit and I finally lose patience and kicked my mother from the apartment.

I feel relief when she finally leaves the apartment. But I'm very worried about my kittens. I am wondering if I take my babies back home and come back to look for the other two who are not in the apartment, or if I look for them first. So I come to the conclusion that I need to go out to eat something. Because I am really hungry and exhausted.

I go by car to the condo concierge to get an umbrella. It is still raining a lot. As soon as I arrive in the guardhouse, I see a very strong gentleman dressed completely in the army uniform. I think this is a little strange, but I ask the umbrella and go back to change myself in the apartment, because I'm completely wet.

Almost two years after this moment, I will be feeling a strong discomfort in never and a terrible anguish as I remember the details that happened on this day of horrors ...

But now I'm returning to my apartment. Lying on the passenger seat rests a borrowed umbrella. And I don't know how I can only think about eating something.

Chapter 12

Game of Thrones

I come home after a hard day of work, completely exhausted. I just realized that it wouldn't matter how hard I struggle, I would never do anything. They would do everything possible to nullify me. I understood that I was dealing with really dishonest people.

Then I see Adam lying on the sofa completely emerged on his cell phone, laughing and entertained.

I think: I spent all these years striving so hard to build a castle that became my tomb. I will never be able to get out of it. I just think: I give up.

So I sit in front of my notebook and I have no reaction for a few long minutes. I remember seeing an ad about a new game - Game of Thrones. I followed the glazed series ... I loved it. I always liked games, but I had put it aside to dedicate myself to work. I see the game as a possibility of scape from reality. And ... that's exactly what Game of Thrones became for me ... but it was much more than that.

It was in the Game of Thrones that I could find out myself ...

Chapter 13

Groups on research

It seems that the Brazilian people is born with a way ... There is always a way to cut the path or to jump a stone ... There is always a way for everything.

Possibly this is because the Brazilian people had to survive several crises ... years of inflation followed by the opening of world competition in the market and freezing savings along with a strong monetary devaluation. And this is only what I witnessed in Brazil.

I was still a child, but I kept the moment my mother put a fried steak on my plate ... after a long time I didn't even know what it was like to eat meat ... her plate was only rice , beans and a fried egg.

Soon after, I saw my mother's employees complaining, saying that my mother was eating meat and didn't put meat on their plate.

There were countless difficult times ... but in some regions of Brazil, there was something much worse - drought and hunger. In the Brazilian interior, whole herds of cattle die with thirst and malnourished. The TV periodically show images of bones and vultures in a desert scenario that did not seem to belong to Brazil ... but belong.

After some unsuccessful attempts, the Workers Party has decided to relate to the right-wing policy and therefore can finally reach the presidency. So ... something start to change in Brazil.

University professors gained a chance to have better salaries, but master's and doctorate diplomas were needed. Universities began to spread to cities in the Brazilian interior. There have been many new contests, many new courses have been opened and, in particular, a lot of postgraduate programs. We can say that the PT brought to Brazil a large university revolution as well as directed the focus of universities for research. CAPES has become responsible for the periodic evaluation of postgraduate programs.

After a few years, some groups began to strengthen themselves, and some universities began to become more like political institutions than autarchies. Some programs have begun to hire (through contest) finger-chosen teachers and graduated from the postgraduate program itself, if not friends and family, to increase the size of their own groups. And to get better score by CAPES, the times of masters and doctorates were reduced.

As a result, many undergraduate and postgraduate programs have acquired a homogeneous and doctoral faculty, but without the real ability to do research.

With no ability to create their own projects, then the political struggle begins with the property of the research of others: "If I cannot develop my research, I will publish yours." Then the political retail begins within universities to teachers who want to develop independent work ... the fight for property about knowledge.

Certainly this is a problem that is aggravated in Brazil. Possibly it is also an aggravated problem in other countries, because the research revolution event took place in Brazil, following a worldwide trend.

However, I believe there is still a way for that:

- depolitimate universities and teacher entry contests (focusing on multidisciplinary and crisp mechanisms and regulation for this);
- identify the real level of scientific knowledge of masters and doctors hired at the university and requalify masters and doctors already agreed, giving them the possibility of identifying their own research area, being the university responsible for the demand of the plurality of professional profiles;
- identify the coherence of the topics of the works published with the area of knowledge of the authors;
- require the CRediT section to be included in all publications;;
- require university professors to have some ethics training;
- create support mechanisms and support for all teachers and not just the political groups of universities;
- and especially: develop open research, with version controlling (SVN), in such a way that scientific contributions and the progress of developing work can be closely monitored and by any interested party.

In most universities, as well as in most states and condominiums, those who decide always decide for themselves ... but I still have hope.

Chapter 14

The face of horror

Now things will work this way ... If someone "important" thinks you are a Host, someone else press some key and you will have an unbearable head pain, or even a heart attack. Perhaps someone will affect your lung so that you are diagnosed with pneumonia, even if you live in a very hot place and avoid being under the air conditioner. It's possible you find a cancer in your diagnosis.

So it's better for anyone not to know your existence, isn't it?

But ... what to do if your existence has already been noted ?

Most of the time it is an unbearable pain. You have the impression that someone is trying to send you to a hospital. There are various forms of pain, back pain, head ... An insight acute pain throughout the body ... muscle pain ... A horrible burning in the nostrils ... Sometimes it seems that a laiser feche is passing along the brain. It's a lot of pain, there are many different forms of pain ... The pain usually wakes you up from a deep sleep. Usually near 3:00h am. Sometimes the pain lasts all day.

Thank God it is not so every day. But it is so with some constancy.

Along with the pain comes malaise and diarrhea...

And, usually, some oil and black dust in the windows and on the floor and a bad and strong smell of something you don't know. The smell is not always the same but it is alwas bad.

You really live far from the city, about 50 meters away from the road. There has always been the noise of cars passing quickly through the road, as if it were the sound of the waves of the sea, and, besides, just the silence. But now you are constantly annoyed by a noise of cyrenes that pass on the road at reduced speed, and the sound of cars left in acute mode. Very loud sound of beats that resemble the sound of the heart. The COVID gang chooses to do this repeatedly at a standard moment of your day, which you usually do at different times. For example, the exact moment you decide to wet the plants, or the exact moment you take care of your pets. They want to make sure you understand that they are watching you.

And, of course, they do things to scare you or make you look crazy, such as putting things in food, water ... or doing some kind of procedure that is unnatural and not repeatedly expected, when you get into some environment you use to go to. For example, you see, each time you leave home, a truck or car stopped on the road shoulder, with a person found out and next to the vehicle, waiting for you to pass and, in follow, this person enters his vehicle.

It is a very heavy and cruel booting, done repeatedly and consistently. It's a type of Gaslight. It is very difficult for you to claim, explain or prove what it is happening, but you know that it is unlikely and, in the circumstance, that it is being done purposely to affect you psychologically.

COVID's gang is actually just a bunch of cowards. Someone who has objectives focused on achieving a life ideal would never spend his time assaulting or bothering other people. But all this is really almost unbearable.

And again I need to point out that. This is not just some kind of Bolsonarismo. There are people financing this.

I almost forgot to report on technological attacks. Just like physical and psychological attacks there are other attacks that use the network and the collection of you private data. In this form of attack there is also a lot of creativity. Let's try to create a list:

ads using YouTube advertisements: you are seeing a movie on YouTube at the end of the day. You sit on the couch to be able to disconnect from a day at work and suddenly appears an ad with a death message, or a picture of some area of your own home, or about some author whose book you just buy, or some reference to some recent thought, on which you did not comment with anyone.

built-in messages: you start to get upset with Youtube and then signs Netflix. It sounds good at first, but then you start receiving emails from websites you have already consulted at some point in your life and you signed up for some reason. In these emails there are built-in messages - a underlined phrase, or simply a text that is out of context. The sentences are also related to your thoughts, or to something you said or wrote. They are always malicious comments in the sense of provocation. There are also messages that appear on your mobile, from your bank or some source that you would normally say to be reliable. Of course, you can even try to talk to a Federal Police agent. But what are you going to say ? And yet you will have to go through the attendant. The latter will have someone by his side, saying that he should throw away or place in the refrigerator. The one apparently advises about food. But the attendant will say: I don't put anything in the fridge. And then he find a way to discard you quickly. The attendant says something like: the Federal Police do not deal with these subjects.

google translate translations: you are used to using google translate for work or to translate the chat of a good friend whose langue you have not yet been able to learn. So you glue the phrase in the translator and suddenly appears a text: I'm not responsible for that, I'm not a chemical. You realize that this is not a possible expression of your friend. Then you put the pointer right after the last word and press ENTER key again. And voila, now we have a friend's message: I also miss you. I still think of visiting Brazil.

There are countless ways ... and it is something about what is not pleasant to write ... It is not possible to refer to everything ... but the form itself points to the culprits...

First: All harassment costs money. Two years of booling does not cost cheap. Who could spend so much money on this? A great businessman, or what I believe - public money. Second: There are people involved with a high knowledge in technology. And to read a person's thoughts, you need to have access to the latest in terms of technology. Third: Gaslight is a technique that was invented by a psychiatrist. It is a malicious resource that can only be designed and planned by people who are aware of psychiatry.

All this combined with the explicit attempt to destroy your image and the theft of your projects (with all the work you had to identify new problems, and came up with new ideas of contribution to research and new solutions techniques), points to a unique direction. However, who should you appeal to ask for help ? And how to use your own testimony when your own mother hosted you in a clinic and the clinic psychiatrist gave you a certificate with false information by stating that you are out of reality ? Is there a way to get out of this hell ? If you leave, your conscience will allow you to silence ?

Somehow the horror goes far beyond your path, it disguises it and walks among many people. Can you be silence when you understand that there is a system that abuses legal devices to bury live a person who somehow ended up becoming a host because he wanted to work independently and ended up acquiring potential for innovation and overcoming ?

Or will you find a way to express yourself and tell the whole world the truth ?

The reason is not revenge, but the need for change. It is not possible for a society that is in this way, move on and establish itself definitively.

On the one hand, a discourse for free competition and freedom of expression and on the other side a fucking politics that destroy the people who represent some threat to the status quo. This is not digestible.

Chapter 15

The rain and this amazing ship called the Universe

Have you ever wondered why you are on this planet ? Why are we here here ?

I can answer for sure. If you want to understand why something exists, just understand its purpose.

So what does human beings love more than anything ? Learn new things. Exchange experiences.

So, besides grafting the earth, the experience is most likely the main reason that man populates the earth.

I believe the earth has the means to keep, process and distribute any and all form of experience lived by people, animals, plants and ... well ... everything else.

But ... how does nature do this ?

In many different ways. Through reproduction and other means ... but mainly through water.

It is possible to say that water in its natural state has living information.

Would it be crazy to say that just like our DNA, the air we breathe, our urine, our sweat, and other things that leave our organism carry our experiences ?
